

forms, modern architecture, and recent economic power). return to course list

PORT 201: 2nd Year Portuguese-

In this course you will be reinforcing and building upon the fundamental communication skills acquired in first-year Portuguese. Students will be able to practice more complex grammar structures and improve your reading and speaking abilities. The organization of the course follows the information-based task approach, which springs from the idea that languages are best learned when real-world information becomes the focus of students' activities. Therefore, during this term, besides exchanging real-life information about you and your classmates you will also read and discuss more about Brazilian and Lusophone culture. Class time will be dedicated to communicating in Portuguese using the structures and vocabulary that you have covered previously in assigned readings. Please note: Students and instructor will be communicating only in Portuguese! return to course list

WINTER 2014

PORT 102: 1st Year Portuguese-

In this course you will be introduced to the fundamental communication skills: understanding, speaking, reading and writing, as well as to some cultural aspects of the Luso-Brazilian world. The textbook follows the information-based task approach, which springs from the idea that languages are best learned when real-world information becomes the focus of students' activities. Therefore, during this trimester, you will exchange real-life information about you and your classmates. Class time will be dedicated to communicating in Portuguese using the structures and vocabulary that you have covered prior in the textbook. return to course list

PORT 199: Portuguese Culture-

This course is design as an accelerated introductory course for speakers of a Romance language. This is the first sequence of the first year of basic Portuguese instruction and it intends to cover the basics of Portuguese grammar, its fundamental skills: understanding, speaking, reading and writing, and present selected aspects of the cultures of the Portuguese speaking countries. The textbook follows the information-based task approach, which springs from the idea that languages are best learned when real-world information becomes the focus of students' activities. Therefore, during this term, you will exchange real-life information about you and your classmates. Class time will be dedicated to communicating in Portuguese using the structures and vocabulary that you have covered prior in the textbook. return to course list

PORT 202: 2nd Year Portuguese-

In this course you will be reinforcing and building upon the fundamental communication skills acquired in first-year Portuguese. Students will be able to practice more complex grammar structures and improve your reading and speaking abilities. The organization of the course follows the information-based task approach, which springs from the idea that languages are best learned when real-world information becomes the focus of students' activities. Therefore, during this term, besides exchanging real-life information about you and your classmates you will also read and discuss more about Brazilian and Lusophone culture. Class time will be dedicated to communicating in Portuguese using the structures and vocabulary that you have covered previously in assigned readings. Please note: Students and instructor will be communicating only in Portuguese! return to course list

PORT 399: Portuguese Language and Culture-

This course provides an interdisciplinary and critical examination of Brazilian culture. The main objective of this course is to expand student's understanding of Brazilian society while working on their reading strategies through the use of a more complex set of grammar structures. This course will discuss articles, movies, songs, poems and short stories that revisit moments of oppression in Brazilian national history, more specifically the military dictatorship (1964-1985). This class offers students the opportunity to enhance the structural knowledge of the Portuguese language while presenting students with literary texts and songs by major Brazilian authors who reacted to the despotism, repression and censorship of those times. Along with the discussion of texts and grammar practice students will also have the opportunity to practice different styles of composition. Please note: Course conducted in Portuguese. return to course list

SPRING 2014

PORT 103: 1st Year Portuguese-

In this course you will be introduced to the fundamental communication skills: understanding, speaking, reading and writing, as well as to some cultural aspects of the Luso-Brazilian world. The textbook follows the information-based task approach, which springs from the idea that languages are best learned when real-world information becomes the focus of students' activities. Therefore, during this trimester, you will exchange real-life information about you and your classmates. Class time will be dedicated to communicating in Portuguese using the structures and vocabulary that you have covered prior in the textbook. return to course list

PORT 199: Portuguese Culture-

This course is design as an accelerated introductory course for speakers of a Romance language. This is the first sequence of the first year of basic Portuguese instruction and it intends to cover the basics of Portuguese grammar, its fundamental skills: understanding, speaking, reading and writing, and present selected aspects of the cultures of the Portuguese speaking countries. The textbook follows the information-based task approach, which springs from the idea that languages are best learned when real-world information becomes the focus of students' activities. Therefore, during this term, you will exchange real-life information about you and your classmates. Class time will be dedicated to communicating in Portuguese using the structures and vocabulary that you have covered prior in the textbook. return to course list

PORT 203: 2nd Year Portuguese-

In this course you will be reinforcing and building upon the fundamental communication skills acquired in first-year Portuguese. Students will be able to practice more complex grammar structures and improve your reading and speaking abilities. The organization of the course follows the information-based task approach, which springs from the idea that languages are best learned when real-world information becomes the focus of students' activities. Therefore, during this term, besides exchanging real-life information about you and your classmates you will also read and discuss more about Brazilian and Lusophone culture. Class time will be dedicated to communicating in Portuguese using the structures and vocabulary that you have covered previously in assigned readings. Please note: Students and instructor will be communicating only in Portuguese! return to course list

PORT 399: Portuguese Language and Culture-

This course provides an interdisciplinary and critical examination of Brazilian culture. The main objective of this course is to expand student's understanding of Brazilian society while working on their reading strategies through the use of a more complex set of grammar structures. This course will discuss articles, movies, songs, poems and short stories that revisit moments of oppression in Brazilian national history, more specifically the military dictatorship (1964-1985). This class offers students the opportunity to enhance the structural knowledge of the Portuguese language while presenting students with literary texts and songs by major Brazilian authors who reacted to the despotism, repression and censorship of those times. Along with the discussion of texts and grammar practice students will also have the opportunity to practice different styles of composition. Please note: Course conducted in Portuguese. return to course list